LOOKING AT THE NEWS with Col. Hugh Clark

A medical man says the average man is not so tall after marriage as he was before. This bears out the theory that after marriage the average man settles down.

Wall Paper Manufacturers, Limited has gone into liquidation. No doubt its product was displaced by stock certificates.

Chicago grand hotels are disappointed because Democratic delegates stayed in cheaper houses and patronized restaurants and cafeterias. Instead of taking a five or six dollar room (prices have been reduced lately) a delegate would seek a two dollar room, and instead of paying $2.50 for a meal in the dining room where he could admire the mural decorations and listen to a five-piece orchestra, he would himself to some place where he could eat all he wanted for fifty cents. What's to become of those hotels where the first three thousand dollars that comes in each day will not do more than meet the interest on the capital investment? They are patronized only by the very wealthy, (and they are few and prudent) and by travellers who are in a position to charge their expenses to the interests they represent.

Everyone agrees the Ottawa conference must be a give and take affair, and we fancy the delegates are even now making up inventories of what they wish to give, regardless of what they wish to take.

According to medical authorities it is the actively intelligent who are subject to goitre. The actively intelligent editor now rushes into print to say that his esteemed contemporary will never suffer from this disease.

We can remember when loans secured by mortgage were considered assets.

The man who tells you he is poor, with tiresome regularity, may not be really poor at all but seeking popularity.

Did he think it would last forever, that producer who predicts that if something is not done soon the moving picture business will collapse? Only early and drastic action, he says, will save the industry, from destruction. But who wants to save it in its present condition? Only those who have brought it to this condition, men and women who have fattened and batted upon it. It would be a sin to save it as it is now. The industry itself will survive but the fabric erected by the exploiters must go, and the sooner the better. Promoters with water, girls with it, boys like Jackie Coogan drawing salaries like Schwabs—no wonder that what started as a nickel show ends in something very like a racket. It lasted longer than it should, and all because in making up the list of expenditures that could be put to meet declining incomes we put amusements at the foot of the list, and they took full advantage of our frailty.

Railway heads are taking steps to meet the competition of the motor trucks. Some one must have told them about it.

F. C. Moyer, Independent, Addresses Vulcan Audience

Tells of New Party Plan at Well Attended Meet

Fred C. Moyer, M.L.A. of Drumheller, and leader of the Independent group in the Alberta government, addressed a good sized representative assembly in the Vulcan theatre on Thursday night, July 7th. Mayor Butchart presided, and the many questions asked during and after the address showed the interest the event had created throughout the district.

In commencing his address Mr. Moyer stated that he had no quarrel with the farmers' party, but he was far from satisfied with the Brownlee government who, he claimed, were responsible for the present unsatisfactory condition of provincial affairs.

Tribute was paid to our local constituency member, Hon. O.L. McPherson, Minister of Public Works, by the speaker stating that Mr. McPherson was the only minister "who had shown any backbone in dealing with the ministerial duties and responsibilities."

Mr. Moyer laid the plans of his party before the listeners and stressed the many points of his organization plans.

He gave figures showing the alarming state of the provincial debt, which was going up at the rate of $2,000,000 a month for the past nine months. Unemployment costs were not the cause, claimed Mr. Moyer, of our increasing debt, as roughly speaking the province's share of unemployment was some $300,000. Although there had been some 30 conferences held to date on unemployment, nothing constructive had been done to help unemployment.

The speaker touched on the Turner Valley gas situation and claimed that the present party in power was protecting the big interests as against the smaller companies and local investors and had "even gone to the length of eliminating from the Gas Conservation bill the clause calling for the payment of two cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas used by the gas company in Calgary. Those who had followed the progress of the Turner Valley gas preservation issue during the last session of the legislature and had observed the lobbying done at Edmonton when the bill was before the House by the big oil and gas interests and then had watched Premier Brownlee's attitude in the matter could come to only one conclusion—that the government was only considering the big interests, Mr. Moyer said.

Mr. Moyer claimed that Premier Brownlee had betrayed the farmer, and was doing nothing to help them and brought up many points to prove his statement. One point was the case of seed grain being sold to the farmers by the provincial government at higher prices than the same seed grain could be purchased by the farmers locally, and in many cases, he asserted, the seed grain had wild oats and other weeds in it.

The new provincial party was started by the people who were dissatisfied with conditions in Alberta today, and the mismanagement of provincial affairs by the Brownlee government, the speaker asserted.

Jinx Follows Vulcan Senior Baseball Artists

The proverbial jinx continued to follow the Vulcan senior baseball manipulators after a splendid start at the opening of the season. Their loss to Blackie on Friday evening last on the home diamond being the fifth in a row.

Weather conditions were threatening and a very small crowd of spectators viewed the game, Blackie taking home the bacon to the tune of 13 to 7. Countless errors were fatal with the locals and only once were they in the lead on the score board, this being in the fifth inning when Flynn made the circuit of bases bringing in the necessary number of runs to do this. This lead was maintained until the eighth when the Blackie batters brought in four counters, bringing the score 10 to 7. They made three more runs in the ninth inning.

Fulton pitched four frames for the locals, then being relieved by Anderson. Hart went the full course for the Blackies.

The losses of late have practically put the home team's aspirations for the finals out of order and Blackie and High River are likely batters for the winner of the Wheatbelt league. Blackie 401 000 143-13

BANK MANAGER LEAVING

H. S. Sutherland, who for the past five years has served as manager at the Vulcan branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been transferred to the audit department of the bank at Winnipeg and will shortly leave town. "Suds" during his sojourn in Vulcan has made hosts of friends and has contributed much to the success of social and community activities. His successor is A. C. Gladman, who has been associated with the branch at Alliance, Alberta, in the same capacity.

VULCAN BAND FEATURED IN STAMPEDE PARADE

Calgary Stampede and the Vulcan band featured in the large parade in connection with this event is one of the new events of the week locally. Some twenty-four members of the Vulcan Citizen's Band, under the leadership of R. H. Weale, journeyed to Calgary and took part in the attraction. Many people of the town and district accompanied them and all were pleased with the excellent performance given by Calgary radio stations and the writer on hearing the class of music "over the air" say, that although not loud in volume, the quality was in keeping with the standard of any band heard on the broadcast.

VULCAN now BOASTS a "Flying Garageman"

We have heard other towns boast about their flying ranchmen and their flying doctors and flying Chinese, but Vulcan can now boast a flying garageman in the person of A. S. "Scotty" Love.

The purchase was made through the Western Flying Service of Calgary by Phil Lucas, a member of that firm, and the airplane is a Waco, the two passenger type and is a first class machine.

Delivery was made on Wednesday last by Joe Irwin, one of the Vulcan pilots, after a demonstration flight of the previous day in which the purchase plans were completed.

It is understood that the machine will be used at this point for passenger service to any part of the country and for business purposes. Joe Irwin will operate the airplane under the employ of Mr. Love.

Record has not been made in these columns of the purchase of the business known as Lund's Service Station by Fred W. Johnston, who is an experienced man at the game and comes here from Saskatchewan. The business was established in Vulcan a year past by Gilbert Lund. Mr. Johnston will take up residence in town with his family. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Lund will remain in town for some time.

Allan Murray who has been manager of the local Pool elevator No. 2 for the past three years, has been transferred to Blackie to act in the same capacity at that point. Mr. Murray during his residence here has been an active supporter of the hockey and baseball circles, and will be greatly missed from his severance in these connections. Mr. and Mrs. Murray will leave this week end to take up residence at their new abode.

Dr. Burke Leaves for Blackie District Job

Dr. M. J. Burke, who the past four years has been a resident of Vulcan with his family, will shortly leave for Blackie where he has been engaged as a community doctor. The arrangement is based to some extent on the system inaugurated at Cardston this spring.

In commenting on this system the High River Times reports:

"So far in the development of the agreement, there are 100 signers-up, who, for the sum of $18.00 a year, are ensured all medical attendance including ordinary operations. The terms are $9 down and the balance in six months. This secures 100 families with medical service. Where travel in the country is necessary, a mileage fee of 10 cents per mile will be charged for the first call. Dr. Burke has secured the old hospital building for residence and offices. This will provide him with quarters in which to make examinations and care for emergency patients."

Dr. Burke came to Vulcan from Blackie and was first associated with Dr. G. M. Carson, after which he located in the Imperial Hotel block. During his sojourn in the district he has acquired wide professional connections and has contributed greatly to the fraternal, social and sports circles.

Many farewell gatherings have been assembled to wish the family the best of luck at their future home and to express regret on their leaving Vulcan.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS of Vulcan District

The regular morning service will be held in the United Church at 11 o'clock, with the Sunday school session at the close of the service. Services will be held at Berrywater at 3 p.m.

The tourist season has started in full swing and every day sees cars from provinces in Canada and many of the United States in Vulcan. Many patronize local merchants and garages and help revive business in this manner.

Most of the comings and goings from and to Vulcan have been in form of trips in different manner to the Calgary Stampede. Vulcan sends a goodly share of patronage to this event and this year is no exception. Monday, the opening day, saw the town as "dead as a door nail" and all store clerks and others in town had an easy time of it.

The Stuckey service station, now at the present time leased by Messrs. Phelan and Simington, who have retail and wholesale agency of the British American Oil Co., has been purchased by the Texaco Company of Canada. The new purchasers will make extensive changes to the buildings and property and will erect new service facilities for the patrons.

A number of parents of the girls from Vulcan attending the C.G.I.T. outing at Juanita Beach camp on the Bow River near Arrowwood motored to that place on Sunday, this day being visitors day. They were all delighted with the manner in which the camp was conducted by Miss Olive Hilton of Calgary. Towns represented at the camp are Arrowwood, Brant Brooks, Carmangay, Gleichen, Milo and Vulcan.

The Vulcan Bakery is under the new management of Duncan Skinner, who comes here from Lethbridge and is a baker of many years employ at Calgary and other points. Mr. Skinner took over the management Monday of last week, after the temporary carrying on of business by the owner, Colin Melnes, since the leaving of H. Wheeler. The new management will be later joined by his wife and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sage who for the past year have lived in Vulcan where Mr. Sage acted as manager of the Independent elevator, will leave town shortly to take up residence at Gadsby, Alberta. Mr. Sage has severed his connections with the Independent grain and will join the staff of Pool elevators in the capacity as manager at Gadsby. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sage have been active in the social and community life of the town and will be greatly missed by a host of friends.

The large special bus arriving in Vulcan on Saturday evening last was sponsored by the Department of Agriculture and picked up the winners from the many towns in Southern Alberta of the highest average attained at the school fairs held in the respective points. Olds was the destination and the winners will spend a week as guests at the School of Agriculture there. Reid Hill contributed two passengers to the excursion, but as no school fair was held in Vulcan last season the persons from here were nil. The group were in charge of Wm. Benn, well known in Vulcan for his work along the school fair line.

An Interesting Letter

The Advocate has received a letter from T. E. Reynolds, a former Vulcanite who is now a resident of Argentine, Kansas. "This place is situated 12 miles from Kansas City, Mo. and is the market centre of the district," Mr. Reynolds states in his letter. Continuing he says, "This part of Kansas is a fruit and truck garden territory and all kinds of fruit trees and berry bushes are grown in profusion. A hard frost early in March killed a great quantity of the crop of fruits, but a few peaches and pears are now coming on the market. Raspberries are just going off the market (July 5th) with a good crop."

Mr. Reynolds continues his letter by quoting prices of fruits, but a part that will be of much interest to our district is as follows: "Wheat harvest began here on June 12th and is now almost completed. New wheat is coming in to the elevators in great quantities, over 1200 loads during the week end, selling at about 30 cents at country points and yielding from 8 to 20 bushels to the acre. Corn, oats and alfalfa hay are fine."

In closing this interesting letter the writer says: "But for me I prefer to live in Canada. A large number of people are Mexicans and negroes who take the white man's job and yet it is the white man who pay the taxes to keep up the schools to educate their children."

EMPTY STORES MORE TAXES

"With four vacant stores and as many living apartments unoccupied, says the Bowmanville Statesman, 'which undesirable conditions may be attributed to a large degree to citizens sending their money out of town instead of buying from local merchants, makes one wonder when will taxpayers realize the error of their ways?'"

Dealing with this same subject, the Almonte Gazette says that "a lot of Almonte people are so busy buying in Ottawa to save a miserable nickel, or sending to Toronto department stores for the same purposes, that poor old Almonte is likely to die of slow stagnation. Almonte has an excellent moving picture theatre which puts on programs second to none in the large cities. But it gives one a gone feeling to step into the show, some nights, and see the sparse attendance. Some day, not so long from now, the town will wake up to find itself without three institutions, namely a weekly newspaper, a hotel, and a theatre."

Such a lack of loyalty will soon kill any town. Citizens should make it a practice to spend their earnings at home. The money one spends elsewhere doesn't help the town in which you live but helps the city in which it is spent. Then, again there is a possibility that money will come back to you if it is spent in the place in which you earn your living.

Vacant stores, empty houses and deserted apartments means higher taxes and increased living expenses for those remaining in the town. —Whitby Gazette.

UNWONTED STIR

Is there a tingle of election-tingle in the air? Certain signs and portents of political activity have not been lacking. According to reports from other towns, the Conservative leaders have been round and about, breathing the breath of life into dormant disciples. Mr. Moyer, M.L.A. of Drumheller, has launched out on the wings of a new Independent party. The U.F.A. is extending the right hand of fellowship to all who wish to co-operate. Their manifesto issued at Edmonton indicated a broadening-out policy. So far as visible evidence goes, the Liberals alone are inactive, but even there may subterranean stirrings.

The other evening in High River, those who wished to be informed could have gleaned many facts regarding existing financial conditions of the Province. Mr. Shields, M.L.A., gave an accounting of finances, and the purposes to which taxpayers money is being put. It would have made an excellent campaign speech, if there had been any occasion for campaigning. As it was, it provided useful mid-term information, and the only matter of regret is that such information is not given more frequently. A statement of money matters and policies, is as a rule reserved for campaign ammunition. Yet, it should be given wide publicity after every session.

All in all, there seems to be an activity amongst political bodies, rather unusual for summer months. Possibly the new League for Social Reconstruction which is acquiring membership in all parts of Canada, has encouraged political leaders to look to their fences. The manifesto issued by the U.F.A. Edmonton Conference embodies many of the points urged by the League for Social Reconstruction. Neither however, has borrowed from the other. In fact the Progressives of Ottawa have long urged many of the points urged by the League, and the League apparently built its platform from the convictions of certain economists and academic scholars combined with Labor and socialistic influences.

Mr. Moyer's Independent party also seems to subscribe to general League beliefs, so there is a certain unanimity of purpose in this political stir. All appear to be ready and willing to co-operate. The testing time for all will come when candidates in different ridings are being nominated for election. Will the U.F.A. swing in behind a "new party" man, if he otherwise fits their needs, or will they put up a candidate, to retain party power. Similarly will the members of the new party stand back of a U.F.A. candidate if his beliefs co-incide with theirs. Will all the new theories cropping up serve to produce a harvest of nominees, when elections roll round, or will people honestly dismiss party and class prejudices, and elect the best and ablest man in the district? It remains to be seen.

HAVE BEEN WARNED

Like a plague of Pharaoh, the beet web worm has been marching through the country spreading waste and destruction. In the eastern part of the district, gardens have been hopelessly ravaged, and in the Cayley district also many gardens have suffered. Such a visitation is particularly serious this year, when gardens mean no inconsiderable portion of the year's living. To date, no damage is reported in the town, and if we escape, it will possibly be because we are almost surrounded by water. The flood which brought loss and trouble, may have also brought certain immunity.

However we have all been warned. Early in the season the agricultural department of the province published widespread warning that the beet web worm might be one of the season's tribulations. Information was also given as to the best means of saving gardens. No great heed was given to the warning, despite the fact that the research department is employed for the purpose of safeguarding the people against the consequences of plague and pest. The service was given, but in not making use of it, many citizens lost their gardens.

Others however, on notification of the threatened attack immediately ploughed furrows round their gardens, laid in a stock of paris green and were on the alert for the big drive. These people made use of the services which the government provides and which the public pays for.

Many strange tales are being told of the rapidity and thoroughness with which the web worm works. In a very few hours, the marching army can lay waste a large garden. The difficulty of controlling the pest when it advances as an "army" is very great, but there seems little trouble in destroying the few that have hatched round many rural gardens. One man who had only the worms to combat which had hatched on his own place, sprinkled the furrow surrounding his garden with 50 per cent. crankcase oil and 50 per cent. coal oil. This mixture was revolting and the enemy made no attempt to advance.

Life in this country—as in other countries—is truly one thing after another. It requires an immense reservoir of courage and stamina, to take one by one, the blows of nature, and to continue undaunted. There are some blows for which no provision can possibly be made. Others however can be safeguarded against, to some extent. And the public is advised to act on the warnings of those whom they themselves employ, for the purpose of giving warning.

ANOTHER PLAGUE

In all the record of Biblical plagues, no mention is made of young men working their way through University by selling magazines. This is a strictly modern calamity, but it ranks high in importance. While the country folk are battling with the web worm, the townsfolk are at the mercy of another army—the young men who are selling magazines for college tuition. No breastwork can be thrown up to discourage them, no trench can stay their progress, no water turns them from the path. On they come in battalions.

They are all bright and appealing, with smiles, gestures and speeches turned out of the one mould. They press this magazine and that, upon unwilling hearers, in order that they may spend another year in the sacred halls of learning. All the University men of the world seem to have made a dead set on this town in the past few weeks.

Poor children! How many refusals they must get in the course of the day! How many stony hearted listeners! How many doors ostentatiously latched as they approach the different homes! It is unnecessary to say that they are not pursuing a chosen line of labor. Few of them would be submitting themselves to the perpetual affronts, the unconcealed impatience of the public, if any other possible means of wage earning could present itself. They are continually rebuffed, yet they keep a smiling front, hoping against hope to meet up with some weak-minded or soft-hearted individual.

The business of house to house canvassing has multiplied unbelievably in the past year. Even conservative firms have discovered that the only way to sell goods is by getting them into the homes. The majority of people cannot afford to buy, and they stay home rather than submit to the temptation of the shops. So the most effective method of salesmanship appears to be in taking the goods to the people. And because of this, someone with something to sell is forever knocking at the door.

While the whole system is irritating time wasting, and uneconomic, it nevertheless rouses the compassion of any thinking person. There is a need to sell the goods, the young canvassers grasp at the pittance which they earn on commission. No other avenue of labor is open to them, and they bravely challenge a hostile people who want neither them nor their wares. Before one can be too critical, he should be in position to offer them some less humiliating employment.

It is extremely doubtful if all or many of these young men will earn premiums to take them through another year of college. It is doubtful if they will so much as earn their board. All of them are bright and engaging, most of them seem purposeful and intelligent. Four years ago they would have been seized eagerly by business institutions, trained and developed. Now they are an unwelcome surplus.

If it is true that no effort is wasted, they may be gaining something of character in their disheartening struggle to keep going. And though we cannot help them on their way, no one can look upon their plight unmoved.

A WORLD SAVER

In the world's present extremity, Ramsay MacDonald has again scored a triumph. His success at Lausanne in bringing together the long alienated French and German powers, is an achievement for which few dared hope. Throughout the world, national saviours have risen, struggled and fallen, but Ramsay MacDonald has never lost prestige. It is the simplicity, honor and humanity of the man, which bring confidence to high and low alike. His ability of statesmanship is unquestioned but transcending this is his hold on the hearts of all Anglo-Saxon people. After his Lausanne success, his name will be a household word amongst European nations. He dominates the scene, offers hope to bankrupt countries, gives new lead and courage to the Imperial Conference, and presents an ideal for leaders of the United States government to rise to.

British statesmanship has again proved itself. With France and Germany seemingly hopelessly antagonistic, Britain conciliated, argued and prevailed to bring the two great European powers together, and to effect a reasonable basis of war debt payments which should bring a new spirit and a new revival to Europe. Any revival in Europe, any growth of international tolerance, is bound to have an influence on this country. The happy release of the Lausanne deadlock, the unravelling of European snarls should immensely influence the Ottawa meet. And many who held little hope that the Imperial Conference could bring any results, are now viewing it with optimism.

United States, has so far failed lamentably in the world crisis. It has failed within its own borders, and internationally. In all diplomatic relations, it has lacked courage and vision. But the action of France and of Britain in particular, should surely serve as guidance and light to American statesmen.

A NOBLE COUNTRY

One of the delegates to the Canadian Women's Press Conference, after travelling from Calgary to the E. P. and back by Turner Valley, exclaimed "What a noble country!"

It is often through the eyes of a visitor that one sees familiar scenes anew. While few of us are lacking in appreciation of our scenery, we are not always actively conscious of its charms. And yet most of us, dating our experience over many years, realize that our own little territory is unfailingly refreshing to return to. Very often, when many other parts of the West are withering under unyielding drought, our own great hills lift their green heads untouched. When elsewhere many crops are stunted and shrivelled, our rise in full tall growth. It is not often on the prairies, that we find country more inviting than our own. We take a pride and pleasure in our scenery and it is always a pleasure to know that visitors appreciate it.

"Noble" is a term most apt in describing the immensity of our view. One might hope that an environment of such magnitude might develop a kindred nobility of outlook amongst the people. Whether we are worthy of our surroundings is a question. Certainly we are at times guilty of a meanness, a harshness and pettiness that are not worthy of dwellers in the shadow of the steadfast mountains, the sweeping hills. If we could mould our characters on our surroundings, we could become a "noble" people in a noble land.

LOOKING FORWARD

The most hopeful sign of the present lies, not so much with leaders, as with the masses. Forces are active all over the country, from every element of society, calling for definite action on monetary problems, for a study of undue profits, for a more equitable adjustment of values in order that all might have a share in the rewards of labor. This force, developing amongst the masses, is bringing itself to bear on those higher up, and eventually must bring action.

The delay and stagnation of the past two years, has been partly due to the attitude of the public. In prosperous years, they leave others to do their thinking, enjoying the good times and interested in government, only to the point of asking for more benefits. When bad times fall, the majority are plunged into a maze of uncertainty and bewilderment, looking to those at the top to create miracles, and resenting the fact that no miracles develop. It is an unthinking but characteristic attitude.

Now, however, another stage has been reached, a stage of desperation which may bring results. The masses of people are finding some satisfaction in thinking for themselves. It may be disorganized thinking, but out of the welter there evolves a realization of certain conditions that know to be wrong and unjust. From this, the pursuit goes on, to a search for remedy.

Gradually the widely separated forces are drawing together on certain remedies, which have a distinct bearing on world-wide conditions. These forces are operating in every country. They see the results of impossible war debt demands, of impossible tariff restrictions. They see the close knit bonds existing amongst nations and the need for world adjustment.

In each individual country, there are individual problems. As it is in Canada, so in other countries. People are definitely dropping petty politics and hangers, and are uniting in a fairly unanimous demand for certain reforms. The action will doubtless follow, the concerted demand. After all, in a democratic system of government, the will of the people must be recognized, and the vital factor is to rouse people to a knowledge that the power lies with them.

ON KEEPING THE FACE CLEAN?

Of course you wash it—but is it clean? We're willing to wager it is. Then you don't simply go through the motions of washing your face as a habit, but because it makes you feel "right" to know that it is clean and because it is pleasing to the people you meet in the in the course of the day.

Well then, when you buy stationery for your business, is it not worth while to see that it is properly printed and not to accept printed matter of any kind simply because it's cheap? You wouldn't use jute as a face towel, would you? But it's much cheaper than linen! Business stationery is your "paper face"—your personal representative—why not make sure it represents you properly. We will be glad to show you paper and ink samples, specimens of type faces, layouts and estimates. Phone 36. Ask our representative to call. Mail orders promptly filled.

Do You Believe It Is "Just as Good?"

When you ask for a certain brand of goods — a brand that you have seen advertised in your local and other newspapers — and you are told "here is something that is just as good" — Do you accept that statement or do you insist on what you asked for?

"The just as good" variety is usually an imitation of a successful line, prospering in the glow of the original's advertised popularity. It is seldom as good. Remember this: Goods of superior quality are always advertised. They are Right. Their manufacturer knows they are right and states his claims publicly in the press. The maker of advertised goods spends his good dollars to tell you that he stands behind his product and the stores that sell it. There is always something missing in the "just as good" substitute. That something is usually "quality." Refuse the "just as good" offering —

IS GASOLINE A LUXURY

Not in the Usual Luxury Category, Danger in Overtaxing to Too Great An Extent

Is gasoline a luxury? The rate of taxation against it would seem to indicate that the fuel which goes into a farm truck, a highway transport vehicle, a salesman's automobile or the private car of the Canadian family is a luxury on which it is justifiable to levy taxation at a rate in excess of the rate levied against a suit of clothes made by the most expensive tailor in Canada in the late years of the war. That, if this author remembers correctly, was ten per cent. on the value of the suit over $60, or perhaps it was $50. But gasoline is taxed at the rate of 25 per cent or thereabouts.

When you and I were young, the goods we got from the mail order house probably were brought to our front door in a wagon drawn by a horse or horses. Taxation was not so heavy in those days. Perhaps governments were not so hard pressed. Their ideas — and our ideas — were not so big in the way of government service to the public, but there were no suggestions that horse feed be taxed, or that there be an excise levy on the wagon. But today, motor vehicles are subject to an excise tax. There is a registration fee for motor vehicles which never has been applied to horse drawn vehicles (if cabs for hire be excepted) and there is in every province a gasoline tax which is approximately 25 per cent. of the retail cost of gasoline. Except for the Sunday jaunt for pleasure, gasoline today is just as much a necessity as horse feed was 25 years ago.

Gasoline is an item of essential expense in many a business; an excessive gasoline tax will add to the cost of distribution. Reducing the cost of distribution is one of the problems which modern business is attempting to solve, and taxation is one of the probable reasons that the cost of distribution does not come down.

Most of the gasoline used in Canada is produced at Canadian refineries and the refineries collect the tax for the governments. There is, however, a considerable quantity of gasoline imported and it is conceivable that there could be evasion, so far as gasoline is concerned, if the height of the tax makes the temptation sufficient. — Grand Prairie Herald.

MONTANA TAKES TO STRIP FARMING

Following up Alberta's Plan in an Effort to Show Soil Drifting

According to Mr. Sloan, extension agronomist of Montana State College strip farming is a subject of study amongst Montana farmers.

That strip farming will effectively prevent soil blowing is proved by Canadian farmers who have been following this practice successfully for the past 11 years, according to Sloan. H. S. Myrick of Square Butte, the father of strip farming in Montana, and probably the best authority here, declares that it is the only method that has prevented his soil from blowing.

The soil blowing problem, according to Sloan is in its early stages in Montana, but slowly and surely is becoming a serious factor. Last year soil blowing was serious over the summer-fallow area and the entire wheat area of the state is regarded as the danger zone. The severity of the condition last year was especially pronounced because of prolonged drouth, high wind velocity and scarcity of stubble or trash which is present on the surface following good crop seasons. "It is time for Montana farmers to learn about strip farming," says Sloan. He is particularly alarmed about the situation because in one area where so many fields were blown out last year, 125 farms blowing out almost completely two days after a heavy rain.

Conditions in certain areas of Canada before the advent of strip farming were just about the way they are here now, Sloan says. Each year more soil blew away until a time was reached when it was impossible to plant shelterbelts. Driving winds would pick up soil, hurl the fine grains all out.

POLITICS IN U S AND IN CANADA

Ballyhoo and Circus Marks U.S. Conventions; President's Powers Are Restricted

A political convention in Canada has only one similarity to a political convention in the United States, and that is that it drafts a platform that is very rarely paid much heed to.

A U.S. convention is a lot of ballyhoo; the delegates come with bands and vaudeville stunts until a visitor in a convention city wonders whether a circus is in town. All this as a preliminary to sitting down to select a candidate qualified to rule a nation of over 120,000,000 people and to draft a policy promising to build up industry and agriculture and to provide the full dinner pail, social happiness and all the things the people are clamoring for. This happens every four years in some city of the Union. A president is then elected and the platform is mostly rejected.

With us in Canada the circus stuff is never tagged on to a political convention. National party gatherings are held very rarely; almost always when a new party leader has to be chosen. The Liberals have only held a national convention twice in forty or more years; the Conservatives once.

Comparing the system of Government in the two countries, we think we can claim that our works more effectively than that across the border. A government here stands or falls upon its policies; in the United States the President, the head of his party, is never sure that even when he has a majority in Congress, his policies can receive endorsement. It is different in Canada. Had Mr. Bennett's taxation measures fared in Parliament as did Mr. Hoover's when they were presented to Congress there would have been a general election. Defeat of a government on a major issue in this country means an appeal to the people; in the United States it simply results in the President throwing up his hands in despair. — Lethbridge Herald.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT ALL TRUE STORIES

Collection of Curious Incidents, all of Which Happened in Canada

The following queer facts have been garnered and appear in the Milverton Sun. All curious occurrences have had their being in the province of Ontario:

A dynamite explosion in a boiler room in the mining town of Burgess, Ontario, on February 18, 1915, snapped a blacksmith off the ground so fast that the soles of his shoes were left where he stood. His only injury was a slight deafness.

The St. Lawrence river has two kinds of water for miles from its mouth. Water on the north side is green and the other half is black.

Opening the stomach of a calf in Hastings county in 1917, Henry Armstrong, who now resides at 93 Northcliffe Blvd., Toronto, found a piece of two-inch rubber belting, seven feet six inches long, undamaged and without even a tooth mark.

A tombstone in a cemetery at Adolphustown, Lennox county, has the following inscription: "Mary Smith beloved wife of Henry Smith—Kate Smith, beloved wife of Henry Smith—Ann Smith, beloved wife of Henry Smith—Henry Smith at rest."

An elm tree on the farm of Geo. Carpenter, Trafalgar, which is two feet in diameter, has a wire fence through its heart.

Fraser Lake, near Boulder, Ont., turned poisonous overnight in 1930, killing 40 sheep and 20 head of cattle. Vegetables and plant matter which rose from the bottom was blamed by investigators.

Bruce McDonald of Melford, Ont., saw a seal in the Bay of Quinte in February 1932.

SUN RISING IN THE WEST

East Has Misconception of Prairie Spirit Says Montreal Paper

The Montreal Star has this editorial:

The East is buried almost irretrievably under the impression that the West is bogged in the Slough of Despond. We have been deluged with so many hard luck stories from the prairies, and have been induced thereby to contribute so much real money out of our almost empty Federal treasury that it never occurs to us to remind ourselves—"If winter comes, can spring be far behind?" We think of the West as still crouching before dust storms, still looking for seed grain, still smothered under a mountain of literally "priceless" wheat.

This condition of mind—a most deplorable and depressing condition of mind—is our reason for publishing an extract from a private letter written from Winnipeg to a citizen of Montreal. There was no propaganda about this letter. The Winnipeg man has no axe to grind and the Montreal man is not selling anything. It is just an expression of opinion from an exceptionally well-informed and shrewd observer. It runs:

"I have been out of the city for a few days looking over the crops, which, by the way, are particularly promising. I do not recall a year in which the outlook has been more favorable. Subsoil moisture, it is true is deficient in southern Saskatchewan but the rains so far have been adequate, and if we get a reasonable break of luck in the June rains, we shall be well on the way to the realization of a real big crop. Travelling over the prairie these days makes one feel that it is good to live again."

"You may be interested also in a conversation I had with the president of the Board of Trade at Edmonton, who is the agent for one of the big farm implement manufacturers. He told me that the demand for farm implements this season has far exceeded his expectations. When I asked him, good humoredly, if any real money accompanied the order, he made this surprising statement:

"More money is accompanying the orders this season than in any previous year of my experience, and I have been doing business here for 12 years."

"Alberta, it is true, had an exceptionally good crop last year. The crop was put in and taken off at an unbelievably low cost, so that notwithstanding unsatisfactory prices, the Alberta farmer finds himself in a fairly comfortable position."

R. P. Cotterell, radio announcer over Calgary stations, is suing the city of Calgary for $15,000 damages, which he declares was the loss sustained to his farm property on the Elbow. Waters of the Glenmore reservoir and inundated Mr. Cotterell's farm.

BEEF SALES ON INCREASE

Over 125 Stores in East, Carry Officially Branded Beef

An increase of 40 per cent. or 2,014 969 pounds in the volume of officially branded beef sold throughout Canada during the first four months of 1932 is shown in a report just issued by the Markets Intelligence Service of the Dominion Live Stock Branch. This is to say the least gratifying evidence of the soundness of the policy applied by the Federal Department of Agriculture to its Beef Grading Service.

With really good quality in beef, positively marked for easy identification by the purchaser, beef is regaining in steady increasing measure its old place as a popular meat with Canadian housewives. It is interesting to note that officially branded beef is featured in the better stores in all our larger Canadian cities. In Montreal, for instance, there are at the present time over 125 retail stores featuring branded beef, and it is estimated that fully 30 per cent. of all the beef branded in Canada finds an outlet in the Montreal market.

Too much rain and too many casual hail storms is the comment of the Okotoks Review.

A South Dakota farmer was jailed for making liquor of farm board wheat given by the Red Cross.

Regulations in Regina are that all men interested in the back-to-the-land movement, must see the land first, and also that their wives must approve the choice of home.

POLITICAL POT KEEPS BOILING

The following from The Kincardine News, shows what folks miss who don't live in Kincardine. The Kincardine News tells it:

Elections and the turmoil that goes with them frequently stir up needless strife and animosity in communities. We had a federal election all over Canada two years ago this coming month. In this riding the contest was average keen, but any hard feelings generated soon wore away because the Grit political light took sick and could not stay much—in which condition he is average likeable—but now he has recovered and has again started talking a lot of bunkum that will stir up, if any attention is paid to what he says, a certain amount of discord. Oh well, we can stand it if he prefers it that way.

LOW PRESSURE ALARMS EXPERTS

Valley Conditions Call for Greater
Reduction During Tests

Tests being conducted by the engineers of the Turner Valley Gas Conservation board at valley wells are disclosing an alarming state of affairs the press learned last Friday.

Not only has it been shown definitely that gas pressures are dropping and the gas reserves being rapidly depleted, but there is serious danger of water intrusion which might, in a very brief time, destroy every gas well in the field.

In view of the seriousness of the situation, it is understood that, at the conclusion of the tests next week, the board may order that the total gas flow of the field be limited to less than 200,000,000 cubic feet daily, possibly to only 100,000,000 cubic feet.

By virtue of the Turner Valley Gas Conservation Act, the legality of which has been upheld by Mr. Justice Ewing, the board has power to limit the Turner Valley gas flow to 200,000,000 cubic feet daily, and if deemed advisable further to order the flow reduced to as low as 100,000,000 cubic feet daily.

Tests in the south end of the field were reported proceeding satisfactorily. This week the same series of tests will proceed in the north end of the valley, as provided for in orders issued by the board.

In the meantime, oil operators are awaiting the outcome in police court, of prosecutions launched by the gas board against several companies alleged not to have observed conservation orders.

It is considered likely that that board may drop the information against these companies if they see fit to fall into line with other firms now carrying out the board's orders.

GERMAN PAYMENTS GREATLY REDUCED

Victory in Lausanne Negotiations
Opens Way to German Recovery

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald scored a great triumph at Lausanne, when he persuaded France and German powers to agreement over the German war reparations. This is the most signal triumph of the Lausanne Conference, and Prime Minister MacDonald's supreme efforts have brought reward.

Agreement has been reached at the Lausanne conference wiping out German reparation annuities which admittedly could not have been resumed by Germany at the expiry of the Hoover moratorium last month.

In place of annuities, which would have run on for another 55 years at a total of roughly $25,000,000,000 Germany will issue bonds to the amount of $750,000,000 when her credit position permits, and in any event not for three years.

The agreement marks a striking triumph for British diplomacy and for Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who throughout the intricate and often apparently hopeless negotiations never lost heart over his tremendous task of bringing France and Germany together.

FIRST TWENTY FIVE THE HARDEST

A Quarter Century But a Moment in History, Great Things Wrought

One of the best cures for pessimism is a little reading of Canada's history in particular. In an Alberta weekly newspaper which comes to The Herald, we found the following bits of Alberta history last week:

"Alberta is only a little over 2 years old, and 25 years is only a moment in the procession of history.

"During that brief time we have increased the sum total of agricultural products from 20 million dollars in 1906 to 161 million dollars in 1930, 175 million dollars in 1931, and 242 million dollars in 1929.

"Dairy products have increased from two million to 18 millions in the space of 25 years.

"The farmers of Alberta are now cultivating 16 million acres of land, as compared to one million acres in 1906.

"Mining products in Alberta have increased from one million to 16 million dollars in the same space of time.

And what is true of Alberta is true, in slightly varying degrees, of the whole of Canada. Our progress has been phenomenal. There have been setbacks, of course, and we are presently experiencing one of them, but, judged by decades, our gains have been enormous.

They will probably be just as great in the next twenty-five or fifty years.—Exchange.

OBEY ROAD RULES DRIVE SAFELY

Commonsense Rules All That is Necessary to Avoid Accidents

Pass on the straight road, not on curve. Stop, look and listen at railroad crossings.

Keep to the right side of the highway; don't be a "road hog."

Don't cut in and out of traffic unless there is plenty of leeway.

When accosted by an officer be considerate; don't put up an argument. Don't stop on a hill or on a curve.

When stopping pull off the highway if at all possible.

Slow down when another car gives the signal to pass; don't step on the gas and try to keep him from getting by.

Always give a signal when intending to stop or when pulling out into the line of traffic from a parking place.

Always be on the lookout for children and for adults as well, who dart out from behind a parked car, or who suddenly step off the curb.

Keep eyes open at all times to traffic signals and obey them to the letter.

Don't run an excessive rate of speed at any time, and, on the other hand, don't "hearse" drive.

Exceedingly slow driving on main highways is as dangerous as speeding.

Regulations requiring Indians who need to kill game for food to apply to Dominion government agents for permits to do so are being requested by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture and health in a letter being forwarded to Hon. Thomas Murphy, minister of the interior. By having Indians apply to either the Indian agents or R.C.M.P. officers, Hon. Mr. Hoadley feels that control centralized in the Indian affairs department will work more smoothly.

"If such regulations were drafted and put into effect," said the minister "we feel that the entire situation would be cleared up and that much would be done for game conservation in this province."

The minister's application to Ottawa follows upon the judgment written by Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray, of the Supreme Court of Alberta, in the action the King vs. William Wesley, in which his lordship stated, in part: "This does not imply that the Game Act of this province is ultra vires. I merely hold that it has no application to Indians hunting for food in the place mentioned in this section."

Commenting further, the minister said he had no quarrel with the judgment, but could not let the matter rest there in the interests of game in this province.

"If control of the hunting is placed in the hands of the agents, who can check up as to the necessity for food on the part of the Indians, then I am sure the general situation will be much improved. From my contact and discussion with Hon. Mr. Murphy in Ottawa in April, I am sure he will do everything possible to co-operate."

No doubt, said the minister, the public would realize what a serious situation would develop if Indians were allowed to wander through the province and engage upon unrestricted destruction of wild life. He felt sure a co-ordinated policy would be the most beneficial all round.

Dr. Farquharson has discovered a new disease. He calls it "Pipe-lighter-thumb." It comes from using the thumb on a pipe-lighter. The symptoms are swelling of the second joint of the thumb, partial paralysis of the member and inability to make the lighter function. The disease is neither contagious nor infectious.—Gleichen Call.

Yes, his admonition was received with silence. Why the silence? Most of them do not err in overcharging, and most of them do a great deal of work for nothing. These should applaud the implied rebuke of members of the profession who, capitalizing a reputation, base their tariffs on what the traffic will bear.

Suggests Co-Operation of All Organizations as Remedy of Present World Conditions

U.F.A. Executive, Provincial
Cabinet, Federal and Prov.
Members in Caucus

Recognizing that necessary reform for the betterment of conditions can be accomplished in the main, only by legislative action in the Parliament of Canada, the U.F.A. gathering held last week at Edmonton, placed themselves on record as being willing and ready to co-operate with other organizations throughout Canada, with a view to attaining the objects set forth in their manifesto.

This desire to submerge political rivalries, for the general benefit of Canadians, was a dominant feature of the Edmonton gathering.

Offering active co-operation with all other organizations in the province and Dominion, to alleviate present conditions, the executive of the U.F.A. has issued a statement of probable remedies.

This proposal was contained in a ten-point manifesto issued recently by the executive of the U.F.A., following the two-day parley of the provincial cabinet, Federal and provincial U.F.A. members and executives of the United Farmers and Farm Women's organizations.

In addition to the offer of co-operation, the manifesto called for nationalization of the monetary system and abandonment of the gold standard in this country. "This programme," the statement mentioned, "has much in common with the manifesto announced some weeks ago by the League for Social Reconstruction, as well as with the programme of the political labor movement in Canada.

After declaring that constructive action was now imperative for the purpose of securely establishing the foundations of the co-operative state, "which is the accepted object of the U.F.A.," the statement announces the following programme:

"1—Nationalization of our financial and credit system, with a view to the regulation of credit and investment operations, and, in particular, as immediate steps, we advocate:

"(a) The abandonment of the gold standard in Canada.

"(b) A well considered policy of inflation, and the devising of means to make the purchasing power in the with economic requirements of the age.

"8—While adhering to our traditional belief in freer trade between nations, we emphasize the immediate need of a recasting of our tariff policies with a view to the encouragement of our export trade and the welfare of the primary producer and the general consumer.

"9—We reaffirm our belief in a non-party system of government and the elimination of the patronage system and secret campaign funds.

"10—A foreign policy designed to secure international co-operation in regulating trade, industry and finance, and to promote disarmament and world peace."

"2—Public ownership of public utilities.

"3—The acquisition, either by the state or by the extension of co-operative enterprise, of those facilities and utilities incidental to the handling and processing of farm products.

"4—Continued effort in and support of co-operation in all its branches.

"5—Measures designed to bring about a more equitable distribution of wealth, including taxation measures, especially income and inheritance taxes.

"6—Adoption of a national planning policy.

"7—A revision of the constitution of Canada and a re-defining of the responsibilities of Federal and provincial authorities, to the end that our constitution shall be more in harmony with the above programme."

Web-Worms Still Here

History repeats itself, and many will recall the summer of 1920, when a continuous battle was being fought against grasshoppers and webworm. The government issued the same warnings and advice, almost to the word as are being circulated through the country today.

Apparently the grasshopper plague was more general and far reaching in 1920 than in 1932, or it may not have reached its full stride yet.

The gardens not in the direct path of the "armies" have not suffered so severely. The web worm has appeared here and there all over the district but when the pest limited to the worms hatched on the individual farm it has not been impossible to safeguard the gardens. The eggs which develop into web worms are laid almost entirely on pig weed or lambs quarters, and where these are scarce the pest is relatively light. There are two generations in a season, the next laying period being the month of August. If there are neither lambs quarters, pigweed, etc. near the susceptible crops, there will be little danger from the second army due in September.

Vulcan Youths Hike

be quite a popular topic at the present time. However, this particular pair are discussing the U.S. elections, so I guess I'll go to sleep. That's the way I feel about the U.S. election.

Well, here we are in Taber. Taber is like the old gray mare—she ain't what she used to be. We noticed a big mine shut down. They can't sell the coal.

At present we are seated on the edge of Highway No. 3, awaiting a ride. Cars are about as scarce as freight trains, and, gentlemen, that is scarce. Apparently the 'boes do not like this town, so I guess we'll just move on, too.

Our total scenery at present is one pond, a scorching highway, a few trees, an irrigation ditch, some buildings, and a large Stellarene sign.

Well, here comes another car. Is he going to pick us up? Not this time, for he is one of these here-I-come and there-I-go guys. So we sit down again. That makes the seventh car that has passed us up. Oh, well!

Looks like another one. It is! But he has a trailer, and he is sure stepping. Not much chance, but we'll flag him anyhow. By golly he is going to stop. Hooray! Yeah, and it's a ride clear to the 'Hat—about seventy-five miles. Three cheers and a tiger!

Well, folks, here we are in the gas town—Bow Island. We don't see any gas well, but a gentleman just informed us that they are about five miles north of town.

Bow Island seems to be a nice place, from what we can see. The census gives Bow Island five hundred people, but it is pretty hard to believe. However, it is a nice little town. The streets are straight and clean, the main one being gravelled.

Whoa up! Here comes another bum.

"Got a fag, buddy? Thanks—and match? Thanks."

There he goes, a typical bum. He is dressed in overalls, a dirty shirt and a cap. He is younger, perhaps twenty-five, an honest foreigner. Half of these unemployed are foreigners, many speaking broken English, some not even that. Usually they are not a bad bunch—good-hearted, moderate, polite, and will as a rule work, if given a chance. Well, here comes our driver. See you in the 'Hat.

Here we are, gang, in the 'Hat, and what a ride we had. The trailer behind our car persisted in throwing us from one side of the road to the other I won't bother telling you how close we came to the ditch. However, here we are, and that is the main thing. We travelled one hundred and ten miles, and only walked about two. Maybe we're just lucky, or are the travellers kind hearted? I leave it to you. See you later."

That part about swimming in the Henderson Lake sounds like Richard Halliburton swimming in the pool before the Taj Mahal in India.

Good luck boys, hope to hear from you again.
